Hampton Roads Coliseum: (Formerly referred to as the Civic Center Project)

Newport News City Council, for reasons best known to it, voted, 4-3, against participation in a joint effort with Hampton and York County to make such dreams reality. Then, lo and behold, 10 years of working, planning, scheming, haggling and investigation paid off.

The City of Hampton, led by its relentlessly perceptive mayor, Mrs. Ann Kilgore, took the on the task. Mrs. Kilgore had held from the very beginning of her mayoralty that there should be an arena "even if Hampton has to build it alone." It is anticipated that construction should begin by next September. As soon as the Hampton City Council orders work to begin, a Coliseum director will be sought.

Pinpointing responsibility for bringing a long-time dream into reality, it is a difficult task. The Sports Club originally launched and nurtured the hope. The Hampton Roads Jaycees embraced it later and carried its merits before the public forcefully and successfully. Finally, one of the Jaycees' most outstanding members, Herbert Bateman, became chairman of the Peninsula Arena-Auditorium Authority.

From the beginning, Daily Press Sports Editor Charles Karmosky pleaded, goaded and reasoned for such an eventuality. H. V. "Bird" Hooper campaigned for a Newport News councilmanic berth on a platform of obtaining an arena and never altered his course. Both men are former Sports Club Presidents. There were others like them and Mrs. Kilgore, who never wavered in their beliefs that this facility was needed. This information was provided in an article written by Bob Moskowitz.

The Rice Trophy is to be awarded to the school that has accumulated the most points in inter-scholastic competition. On the basis of 12 points for first (one for each school in the Group 1-A district) down to 1 for last, points are awarded only in those in which at least three-quarters of the district members participate. #### HAMPTON ROADS COLISEUM: (Final report)

Project completed. The credit list is long and the roll call of the workers and organizations who made it possible for any individuals to receive credit is even longer.

The late Major R. B. Bottom proposed a "Madison Square Garden-type" facility to be erected on the Casino grounds in Newport News right after World War 2. Early in the 1950's, Hamptonian Joe Sinclair campaigned for a replica of Raleigh (NC) Reynolds Coliseum and almost single-handedly carried the fight for Hampton council endorsement.

While neither Major Bottom nor Sinclair succeeded, neither did they fail, but it was the Peninsula Sports Club that pumped new lifeblood into the idea of an auditorium-arena complex as conceived by one of its former presidents, Daily Press Sports Editor Charles Karmosky.

From the day in March of 1958 when member George A. Robertson found the arena-auditorium concept most appealing and pushed through its adoption as a primary project of the organization, the Sports Club did most to nurture the campaign.

The Hampton Roads Jaycees embraced it later and forcefully carried its merits before the public. Finally, one of the Jaycees' most outstanding members, Herbert Bateman, became chairman of the Peninsula Arena-Auditorium Authority. During the formative years marked by the Sports Club's endorsement and the later ones which brought the two cities into the planning, numerous citizens made strong contributions.

Listing Robertson, Bateman, Duff Kliewer, columnist pleadings in the Daily Press by Karmosky and Bob Moskowitz, and H. V. "Bird" Hooper, who fought unsuccessfully but valiantly for Newport News participation, leave the surface barely scratched among those who labored longest and hardest. Almost all, without exception, are Sports Club members.

Yet, as written by Karmosky on the occasion of the first grand opening, "whenever historians in the future look back to Dec. 1, 1969, to assay what happened on that date . . . specifically the opening of Hampton Roads Coliseum, they shall be able to point to one prime mover.

"That'll be Hampton Mayor Ann Kilgore. She suffers all the brickbats from critics, therefore she deserves full credit for whatever success is (and has been) achieved."

There's only one last acknowledgement which the Sports Club on this occasion would like to make, and perhaps it was best expressed by member-writer Bob Moskowitz, who, after recalling Mrs. Kilgore's pledge "that there should be an arena "even if Hampton has to build it alone", was to write:

"There were, of course, many others like them and Mrs. Kilgore, who never waived in their beliefs that such a venture was a foremost need of their community. In the end, those "others", the John Does, were the ones whose desires led to a new horizon and a new era in the culture of the Lower Virginia Peninsula."

And so it has come to pass, new horizons and a new era have indeed been opened through dedication of Hampton Roads Coliseum, and your Peninsula Sports Club is both humble and proud to have been the catalyst and chief campaigning agency of "The Coliseum That Annie Built."

John Graham, our 1989 Man of the Year, served two years as President and under his leadership some major changes were made.

The Sports Club recently approved an agreement with the Daily Press and The Times-Herald to co-sponsor the High School award with two programs annually.
